

SAVE THE DATE: Sexual Assault Response Team Training Online Delivery, March 23-26, 2021

A full SART training is scheduled to take place March 23-26, 2021 and be delivered virtually via ZOOM. Participants whose internet connectivity is inconsistent and/or expensive can connect by telephone and will receive training content via snail mail. Training will begin at 7:45 am each day and end no later than 4:30 pm.

Who is eligible to participate in this training? Members of active SAR Teams (advocates, nurses/forensic examiners, law enforcement, and prosecutors) across the state of Alaska including those without a full team in their community but who respond to sexual assault reports and coordinate with teams in other communities to provide a full continuum of care to victims.

SART training objectives include:

- Learning to treat victims/survivors with dignity, respect, and empathy
- Learning the roles of each of the disciplines in the SAR Team
- Learning assault response options and processes
- Learning discipline-related skills for responding to a SART call
- Building relationships with individuals from the other disciplines within your geographic area to lay the foundation for effective working relationships

How to register: The application will be posted on <https://cdvsa.eventsmart.com/> in approximately 2 weeks and will be due by March 5. Applicants will be notified of their acceptance about a week later and will be provided a link to register in the online training platform.
